Steve's Charter School

ticharter.org/standards - Steve's 'meaningful tech standards' for grades 6-8

Chapter III Highlights:

Page 32: Dan and Nora - a criteria that works for both ways for teachers. It's a foundation for considering educational technology integration.

Page 32: Jayme and John - highlighted points 3 and 5

PTI:

<http://www.corrupted-files.com>

Creates a file for students that teachers won't be able to open...a little trick for people to buy more time on a project!

Internet Safety:

“Strategies to engage parents in the conversation about digital citizenship” - question from Nora

Web 2.0 - the power of the web to harness collective intelligence

Not read only

The opposite of ‘web 1.0,’ which was all about read only

Not passive

Example of Steve's favorite web 2.0: Google Earth - Click here to view the tour that he created for use with summercore

Steve shared a method for searching for Google Earth tours published on the web. Google earth files end the extension, KML. Search “The Dubliners KML” in google to access any published google earth tours on the dubliners. Try “Grapes of Wrath KML” for fun

Hour 11 SummerCore Admin

John's question: strategies for dealing with economic realities

PTI: ix1 - ‘Math for the left and right brain’

Partner Tasks/Exercises:

1. Make an ePub using ePub2go.com or epubbud.com
2. Convince yourself that you know how to search a powerpoint on a topic of your choosing

3. Create a Tumblr account and reflect on the two exercises above
